HOLDING HIS OWN.

THE PRESIDENT STILL MAINTAINS HIS POSITION ON THE HIGH ROAD TO RECOVERY.

He Sits Up Over an Hour—Several Unpleasant Rumors Afloat Concerning His Case, but None Official.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 14.—[illegible] the president [illegible] the best [illegible] [illegible] respiration [illegible] [illegible] sleeping [illegible] [illegible] this morning [illegible] [illegible] for the next [illegible]

BLISS, HAMILTON.

[illegible] A. M.—The president's [illegible] is now [illegible] he passed a good night and awoke refreshed this morning. The [illegible] [illegible] M. and [illegible] passed off [illegible] The president [illegible] the day as [illegible] [illegible] yesterday, and [illegible] not a single disturbing [illegible] symptom. The weather [illegible] is perfectly [illegible] over the ocean, where a breeze [illegible] [illegible] Hamilton [illegible] the patient [illegible] Swaim [illegible] farewell. [illegible] the president [illegible] he will again be placed in his reclining [illegible] for a short time.

Again Sitting Up.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 14.—The president has been placed in his reclining chair. After he had comfortably settled down in his easy chair he expressed a sense of gratification and remarked: "This should have been commenced three weeks ago."

At the request of Attorney General MacVeagh the temporary track from the Central railroad, New [illegible] to the Franklyn cottage will not be removed at present.

LONG BRANCH, 11:30 A. M., Sept. 14.—Secretary Blaine [illegible] saw the president. He says he expected to see a very ill man and that his expectations were realized. He had not seen the president since the afternoon he was shot, and of course a great change had taken place. The conversation was very brief and entirely personal, no business matters being referred to. The secretary only remained in the sick room about a minute. At this hour the favorable condition continues.

Sitting up Again.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 14, 2 P. M.—The president has just been removed from his reclining chair to his bed, after remaining in the chair for an hour and a half, during which he had a quiet nap. His head was elevated and his feet permitted to drop to about an angle of 30 degrees. Dr. Bliss says he was rather reluctant about being put to bed. The disturbance did not change his pulse or temperature. At this hour his pulse is 104, temperature 98.8, and respiration 19.

No Change in Condition.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 14.—With the exception of the high temperature and pulse noted in the evening bulletin, the president's condition is conceded to be as favorable as yesterday. The doctor said the high temperature was simply owing to the earlier presence of the usual febrile rise. No apprehension is warranted. Col. Rockwell considered the president slightly better. He passed last night very well. He coughed but about three times and expectorated quite freely and without effort. He feels encouraged with his general condition, especially as there have been no unfavorable symptoms developed. He thinks it will be quite comfortable for the president here until the early part of October. The weather is generally pleasant until that time. He thinks when the president gains strength he will desire to go home to Mentor. Of course he is a very sick man and extremely weak, but each day that passes without developing unfavorable symptoms is a day of progress. By the time the cottages close and the season is finally over here, he thinks the president will be sufficiently recuperated to be moved by rail without annoyance. Considerable comment is made to-day relative to the statements published to the effect that the president's blood is poisoned. The prevailing impression among gentlemen of high official rank is, that the president's blood is in an impure and septic condition, and many go as far as to consider it chronic blood poisoning or pyæmia, although probably of a very mild character.

What Boynton Thinks.

Boynton says the figures of the bulletin are not higher than they have been for weeks at night. The usual febrile rise always increases the pulse and temperature more or less, and when at its height for weeks past, the pulse has run up to 120. The president remained stationary to-day, no better and no worse. I do not consider he has got back to the point where he was Friday before Sunday's relapse. This atmosphere is good for him. I doubt if he would have survived in Washington. His condition continues critical because state of his blood is such that similar abscesses are liable to form either in his lungs or other vital regions. There are good reasons, however, for hoping that such will not be the case. The improved condition of the original wound, the healing of sub-cutaneous abscesses over different portions of the body, and slight improvement in his general condition, are indications that he is making better blood. Just in proportion as his blood improves in quality and quantity the liability to further complications diminishes. Another favorable condition in his case is that the febrile rise comes on later, and does not continue so long as heretofore. The slightly febrile rise is still a marked feature in his case. For some weeks his pulse has risen at the same period of the night, generally about midnight, to 120. Towards morning it begins to decrease in frequency and by 7 A. M. the temperature and pulse reach the point indicated in the bulletins. Sea air undoubtedly is doing much for him, and should no further trouble arise, his prospects for final recovery are good.

General Suggestions.

The fact that no mention is made in official bulletins about the serious condition of the president's lung causes comment. Three surgeons are here and will remain over to-morrow. This has given rise to various rumors among them that an attempt will be made to-morrow to draw off pus from the [illegible] with a view of relieving the president's cough. The story is that Dr. Agnew brought instruments with him for that purpose. Agnew said this evening that he considered the president clearly better than when he left here. No doubt is entertained by those who hold that the president is suffering from pyæmia that there is a strong probability of other complications. Agnew, it is alleged, had recently expressed the opinion to a friend that the president is suffering from a metastatic abscess and he considered the present complication as not well in hand, though he does not by any means feel less anxious about the gravity of the situation. To sum up there has been no change in the case since yesterday, and the probability for further trouble from impurities of blood continues, and it suddenly developed will not be surprising. At 9:30 to-night the cottages were closed. The president is asleep, and a favorable night is expected.

Dispatch to Lowell.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 14.—There is an increase this evening in the president's temperature, pulse and respiration, but it is so slight as not necessarily to indicate that the condition of the blood is producing any new complications. Trouble in the right lung is not increasing and is causing him less annoyance. He has taken slight nourishment and his sleep has been natural and refreshing, so that if he has gained nothing he has, probably lost nothing during the day.

MACVEAGH.

Dr. Agnew's Opinion.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Dr. Agnew, in an interview to-night, said he didn't regard the president's case by any means hopeless, and added that he thought the president would receive much benefit from the pleasant weather which can be reasonably expected at Long Branch during this month and the next. Dr. Agnew stated emphatically that the president never had an abscess on the lung. It was merely a circumscribed inflammatory trouble in the nature of bronchial pneumonia.

PISTOLS AND WHISKY.

The Evening Telegram has the following just remarks. Everyone of the base characters and drinking loafers referred to goes constantly armed with deadly weapons. Vile women are their chosen associates, and often the instigators of their crimes. These so-called genteel vagrants, who live by disreputable and even criminal practices, and who yet call themselves "gentlemen," abound in every city. "I'm a gentleman," complacently remarked the slayer of James A. Smith. "His habits and associates show what kind of a "gentleman" he, and such as he, are. But we intended only to introduce what the Telegram has said:

The pernicious habits of drinking whisky to excess and carrying pistols when there is no necessity, have culminated in another tragedy in this county, and before the blood stains which mark the scene of the crime of the Fourth of July have faded away, another victim has fallen before his time. It matters not now, what may have been the faults of the man who was slain; let them be buried with his body in the grave and let those who knew him heed the warning of his untimely end. The community may also learn a lesson from the event. As long as the class of men to which the slayer of James A. Smith belongs, are allowed to carry upon their persons at all times the weapons of death, to be used when their brains are fired by intoxication, upon the slightest real or fancied provocation, the bloody scenes will be recorded, and the work of death go on. The case of Howard must stand upon its own merits, but it should not fail to impress upon the community the necessity of a strict enforcement of the law protecting the lives of all men. DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

At the Kansas City Fair Grounds—A Scene of Indescribable Confusion—Many Persons Maimed and Wounded.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 14.—A terrible disaster occurred at the fair grounds this afternoon, which resulted in great destruction. The fire broke out in the west end of the main hall at 3:45 P. M. At that hour the hall was densely crowded and at once a panic seized the multitude. All efforts to quiet the excited and terror-stricken people were of no avail, and in their confusion they rushed hither and thither, trampling each other down, while shrieks, groans and cries filled the air. Immense heavy black clouds of smoke came from the burning building in vast volumes, and settled in a pall over the grounds which were literally black with a moving mass of humanity, estimated at 10,000 people. A strong wind was blowing and the fire spread with wonderful rapidity, quickly communicating to surrounding buildings. In almost an incredibly short space of time the main building with all its contents were in ashes. The flames swept across the avenues to the newspaper row, quickly swallowing the light buildings of the Times, Journal and Mail, the secretaries' offices and a number of refreshment stands in that vicinity. They next attacked the grand stand, in which not less than 12,000 people were seated watching the races. The people flew in terror before the advancing flames. Many fell and were trampled upon, and a large number were maimed and mutilated. Confusion and indescribable panic had seized upon the vast multitude, and it seemed impossible to quiet their fears. No facilities for extinguishing the fire were at hand and it did not stop until there was no more material for it. The fire department could not reach the grounds in time to be of any service. It had to lay 1500 feet of hose to get water. It is believed no loss of life has occurred. No one has been reported missing up to the present time. The losses will foot up fully $50,000, including buildings and their contents. Losses are distributed among various exhibitors, and there was very little insurance. The exposition company's loss is about $10,000. The board of directors held a meeting after the fire and announced that they will clean up the debris to-night and proceed with the programme to-morrow, beginning where it was broken off to-day.

A VERY HONEST OFFICER.

Superintendent Dodge of the San Francisco Mint Completely Exonerated and Highly Commended by the Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The commission, consisting of Hon. Alexander Ramsey, Thos. L. Young and S. O. Houghton, appointed to investigate the charge made by H. F. Page against H. L. Dodge, superintendent of the United States mint at San Francisco, has concluded its investigation and submitted its report to the secretary of the treasury. The report fully exonerates Dodge from all charges preferred against him, concluding as follows:

In conclusion the commission would respectfully report that the evidence did not establish any of the material charges made, but did establish facts that in place of being "extravagant" the superintendent has been economical; has operated the mint within the appropriation to the extent of $95,000 of the money appropriated by congress for the support of this mint; [illegible] saving reduced the estimates for the appropriations from year to year, since the beginning of his administration; that instead of being "law defying" he has followed the law and instructions in every particular charged, and that instead of being corrupt he has been honest and his administration has been free from the slightest touch of corruption. The commissioners are satisfied and feel that they would not be discharging their full duty if they did not say beyond that the charges were without any foundation in fact, and were in their opinion in all probability the result of misinformation communicated to Mr. Page by friends who sympathize with him in his political quarrel with Mr. Dodge, and that but for such misinformation, and the fact that Mr. Page considered himself aggrieved by the discharge of his friends and appointees from the mint, the charges would probably not have been made.

Political Status of the next Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Yesterday's Maine election reports give the republicans another member of the house, which, not counting the four vacancies in New York, stands: republicans 144, democrats 139, greenbackers 8, readjusters 2, independent republican, H. If the democrats should elect two members, as they claim they can, then the republicans will need the help of Smith to organize the house. The Situation in Egypt.

[illegible] Sept. 14.—[illegible] the situation in Egypt [illegible] apprehensions. All parties [illegible] would be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] should Turkey be asked to [illegible] [illegible] which would tend to [illegible] all [illegible] Italy [illegible] intentions [illegible] [illegible] for the present [illegible] France and England assumed joint occupation. In fact all Europe is [illegible] over the Egyptian incident that anything which has occurred for several years. The foreign demand of some French journals for French gunboats to be sent [illegible] of Egyptian forts, excites but little attention, as it is regarded that France [illegible] to the work of pacifying Tunis and Algeria.

The Times' correspondent [illegible] [illegible] banker, a member of parliament [illegible] regarding the situation as serious [illegible] an embroglio of an international character. He thinks it will [illegible] and other [illegible] He does not know what shape events may take but in any case England cannot allow India to be menaced by interference from any other power. NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Herald's St. Petersburg special says: On my remarking to a high official attached to the ministry of foreign affairs to-day that the Dantzic manifestation seemed to be directed sharply against France, he replied: It is strange but there is no statesman in France with whom one can treat seriously. Gambetta's utterances are always imprudent and the French government commits blunder after blunder. The Hartmann affair is a sad instance and it will not soon be forgotten. If MacMahon were still at the head of affairs, we might then the gap between France and Russia would be narrower. It has never been so wide as now. This is a [illegible] bad feeling on the matter.

Fatal Epidemic in Russia.

Russian journals publish terrible details of the [illegible] epidemic in Russia. It is reported in certain communities and parishes that all the children under 15 years old have died. The origin of the attack dates from 1872, when the disease first appeared in Bessarabia. [illegible] addressed the [illegible] in favor of [illegible] per pound for wheat and a wheat growers association.

[illegible] offered a resolution that growers hold on to their wheat until such time as vessels will carry it at reasonable rates, adopted.

The chair said that if wheat was held until [illegible] [illegible] and wheat [illegible]

Mr. English favored the withdrawing of samples from the hands of dealers who make use of them to bear the market.

Dr. Gratton stated that small growers were in need of money and that they could better afford to sell wheat at present prices than to pay one and one a quarter per cent for money. The association should provide means by which money could be raised at lower rates on warehouse receipts.

English moved to organize a wheat growers association of California.

[illegible] replying [illegible] was informed that the [illegible] bank would loan money at seven per cent on receipts of county warehouses [illegible] [illegible] San Francisco or Port Costa [illegible]

The chair said the grangers' bank was charging over the state at seven and eight per cent, and [illegible] [illegible]

English's motion to organize was adopted.

Mr. Adams, manager of the grangers' business association, explained that the association [illegible] [illegible] wheat at $1 for the season, at fifty cents for the first month and twenty five cents for the following three months. [illegible] [illegible] large lots of wheat [illegible] without any compounding interest and he thought there would be no discrimination between large or small lots. He also explained that owing to the scarcity of tidewater they [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cheaper than the country.

English offered a resolution that a committee of seven be appointed to draw up a plan for permanent organization of a wheat growers association [illegible] [illegible] names were handed to the secretary of those proposing to join the association. The ex-President and the Grip Sack.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Ex-Congressman Daggett was sitting in the same seat in a car with ex-President Hayes not long ago, but the Nevadan man left for a few minutes to go to the smoker. Returning he found that Mr. Hayes had vanished. "Look-a-here!" said a granger from an adjoining seat, "the feller that was a settin' with you took your satchel!" Mr. Daggett found Mr. Hayes in a rear car. When Daggett laughingly opened the valise, revealing a number of soiled cuffs, a deck of cards, and three bottles of whisky, Mr. Hayes exclaimed: "Great Scott! I suppose I had taken your satchel to my house!"

General Grant will reside hereafter in New York, having just purchased from Mr. Lugster the mansion, No. 3 East Sixty-sixth street, for $90,000.

NEVADA.

Work on the Comstock Mines.

VIRGINIA CITY, Sept. 14.—Work in the Sierra Nevada has now progressed so far that Senator Fair does not appear to be much afraid of going it halt, to [illegible] though still somewhat reticent. To an Enterprise reporter he this afternoon said when asked about the [illegible] point at the bottom of the [illegible] Sierra Nevada winze, it is a stringer, it is all ore body. That is now pretty evident. Of course we can only see what can be shown by the bottom of the winze, but having that much in sight it is pretty good evidence that there is more outside of the space occupied by the winze. He is of opinion that the east cross-cuts will soon cut the same body. Indeed, indications are that some of them are now about entering it. These cross-cuts are about 250 feet apart. The winze is exactly on the line between Sierra Nevada and Union, but favorable indications to the northward in cross-cuts would seem to indicate that the former will have the best of it, at least at the start. There are cross-cuts west on the 2500 level of Sierra Nevada. That ground has been thoroughly explored and ore is not looked for in that direction. The drift east from the 2700 station of the Union shaft is not yet far enough out to cut the ore channel. It is being advanced in a species of very porphyry lying in blocks. It is necessary to timber this ground as wedge shaped blocks are liable to drop from the roof. Ventilation in Bonanza, Ophir and Mexican mines has greatly improved. Work has been resumed in the east drift from the 2500 station of Ophir, Mexican winze and at several other points. Savage yesterday started an upraise from the 1500 to the 1400 level. The west crosscut, 200 feet from the south line of Potosi, to-day is not in rock, with the face in a very favorable formation, showing a good deal of quartz and clay.

The Strike in Sierra Nevada.

VIRGINIA CITY, Sept. 14.—The excitement in regard to the strike in Sierra Nevada is still unabated. In an interview this evening Senator Fair said to an Enterprise reporter, when asked what was being done at the bottom of the joint Union and Sierra Nevada winze: "I don't wish to say what I am doing at that point. I will say, however, that I am opening up development as fast as I possibly can. Doing nearly as well as I looked as well as yesterday, he said it did, and intimated that before long there would be something more to be said."

Mrs. Fair visited the mine to-day. She descended to the bottom of the winze and brought up a specimen which Mr. Fair says weighs 39 or 40 lbs. She says bottom of winze looks lovely, which is the answer of Mr. Fair himself. The best obtainable unofficial information is that last night after a set of holes had been drilled ready to be charged, an order came to set up the drill and drill down vertically the bottom, which was done. The supposition is that the drill was running all day to-day. Specimens of ore show it to be black sulphurite and rich, but as yet no assays have been made public. One of our oldest mining superintendents, who to-day saw a piece of the ore weighing four or five pounds, says it is genuine black sulphuret and fine, but did not feel at liberty to say just how much he thought it would assay. The drift from the Union shaft on the 2700 level is tapping considerable hot water to-day, but has not reached the ore channel.

... creature before him can believe it." To support this position Dr. Thomas points out that the famous inspiration text in which Paul has been held to say, "All scripture is inspired of God and is profitable for doctrine, reproof and correction," ought to read and in the new version does read, thus, "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable," etc. Thus he says, instead of endorsing the inspiration of all scriptures, Paul actually endorses his (Thomas') view; for what he says obviously implies that there is some scripture that is not inspired of God.

But while it will be queer if he shall succeed in proving that he can doubt the inspiration of certain portions of the bible and yet be loyal to the doctrines of an orthodox church, his success in such endeavor would put the church in a more queer position still. For nothing can be more certain than that when one abandons the view of the literal and verbal inspiration of the scriptures there is no logical stopping place till he abandons inspiration in the old theological sense altogether. For if some scripture is inspired and some not inspired, who is to judge which is which? If we admit that certain words of the bible are of human and not of divine origin, we leave no words of divine origin. For if on one man's judgment we may reject one word hitherto considered inspired, then we may reject some other word on another man's judgment. And if words may thus be dropped, so may phrases, sentences, passages and even books. For if one man on his mere human judgment may reject a word from the word of God, another man may, with just as good authority, reject a chapter, a psalm or a prophecy. The inspiration of any part of the bible will thus become a mere matter of opinion, taste, or feeling. Dr. Thomas may reject the vindictive psalms, the marvelous tale of Jonah, and the first chapter of Genesis only. But another man, having just as good a right to use his judgment, may keep these in his bible and reject the song of Solomon, the Chronicles and the book of Esther as obviously uninspired. A third man as good and honest as either of them may see reasons satisfactory to himself for declining to receive as inspired any part of the old testament except a few favorite psalms and extracts from Job and the prophets. And a fourth good Christian may carry the work of destruction into the new testament and declare that in his opinion the three first gospels and the first four epistles of Paul are the only authentic records of Christianity, and that even some parts of them are doubtful. Thus will everybody believe in a different bible and some in hardly enough to be called a bible at all; yet all shall claim like Dr. Thomas that they do believe in scripture and find in it all that is necessary to salvation. And suddenly they will all awake to find that the bible as a rule of faith and practice has disappeared altogether, and is only being preserved, like the ethics of Epictetus, or the meditations of Marcus Aurelius, as a very entertaining moral and religious composition.

That the Methodist church sees in the Thomas case this rock ahead of it there can be no doubt, and hence the fight against giving Dr. Thomas a single inch in the direction of the right of private judgment is keen and bitter. Yet, on the other hand, the task of maintaining verbal inspiration in these days of literary methods and historical criticism is no easy one, and the church knows it. The dilemma is an anxious one, and produces a situation of general interest. Yet Dr. Thomas has no reason whatever to complain of being brought as he is before the bar of his church. He need not preach in its pulpits, nor maintain his connection with it unless he desires; but if he preach in its name he is bound to subscribe to its articles and neither he nor his friends have the right to complain of the church for "fettering the intellect" or suppressing "honest religious convictions." The church has no power to do either. A man may preach any doctrines he chooses; but every church has the right to say what shall be preached and taught in its name, and to repudiate or check any departure from its doctrines.

Mr. John J. Knox, comptroller of the currency, read a paper at the banker's convention held recently at Niagara Falls, which contained a number of very interesting statements relating to the volume of the currency and the agencies and methods employed in the transaction of the business of the country. In view of the terrible strain through which the country has passed for the purpose of restoring specie payments, and the anxieties and distresses ... it is noteworthy that at the present moment the main difficulty seems to be rather of an opposite character, as the paramount desire ... to exchange specie for notes. Coin and bullion have been accumulating ... so rapidly during the last few years that at the present time ... gold and silver ... legal tender and national ... All eastern papers published long and ... notices of Gen. Carr, who was supposed to have been killed by the Apaches. The secretary of war ought to grant him leave of absence to collect this voluminous obituary literature. It would make a scrap-book of no small dimensions, and probably would give him a better opinion of himself and of his value to his country than he ever had before.

The new connection of the Erie railroad with the west is to be called the Chicago and Atlantic railroad. It will be sixteen miles shorter between Chicago and New York than any other road. The company sold $7,000,000 of bonds before it let a contract or turned a shovelful of earth. It will have the road through to Chicago in 1882.

A railroad is to be built in the interest of the Central Pacific from Corinne, Utah, twenty-six miles of Ogden, to Yankton, Dakota. Three engineering parties are in the field, and the route is found much better than expected. The object is to secure a connection for the Central Pacific with the east independent of the Union Pacific.

Improvement of our lower rivers seems to be following the philosophy of "The Arkansaw Traveler." In summer the engineers can't do it, and in the winter there is no need of doing it.

ON A SAD TRIP.—Mr. [illegible] M. Morrow [illegible] W. T., received [illegible] that his father, two brothers [illegible] and lived upon a ranch [illegible] Arizona, had all been [illegible] the Indians. Their buildings [illegible] and their cattle driven [illegible] by the murderers. [illegible] Mr. McMorren will leave on the steamer [illegible] this morning, whence he will proceed as rapidly as possible to the scene of the murder [illegible] to look after their bodies and what of their estate may be left. Thus, the bloody work of the Indians reaches in its effects throughout the whole country.

EYE BALL EXTRACTED.—A Miss Judy, residing on Fifth street, underwent a severe but successful operation for an affection of the eyes on last Tuesday. She is now about 18 years old. Fifteen years ago a small splinter was run into one of her eyes and since has given her more or less trouble. [illegible] the injured organ became more than [illegible] the inflammation extending to and [illegible] the sight of the remaining eye. As the only way of saving the well organ, it was deemed necessary to extract the ball of the injured one, and Dr. [illegible] performed the operation, much to the relief of the patient, who is getting along nicely.

STORING GIANT POWDER.—We are informed on good authority that on Tuesday a considerable quantity of giant powder—eight large boxes—was stored on the wharf at the foot of Alder street. The powder was deposited there prior to being shipped on a steamer to some point up or down the river. It was lying on the wharf and was liable to be run against by some vehicle or upset by any one passing. There is an ordinance now in force against storing or depositing any such explosives on the wharves, and any one violating it should be prosecuted and punished to the fullest extent of the law.

TO THE COUNTY JAIL.—Frank Howard, against whom a charge of murder has been preferred, was removed yesterday from the city to the county jail. At the conclusion of the inquest Coroner Garfield placed all the testimony and verdict of the jury with Justice E. E. Bybee, who forthwith issued a warrant for the arrest of Howard, charging him with the murder of James A. Smith. He was transferred to the county jail, and to-day the case will be turned over to District Attorney Caples and the grand jury for further investigation.

INSANE YOUNG MAN.—Deputy Sheriff F. P. Clarke of Spokan county, W. T., arrived here last evening from Cheney having in charge a young man named James Bowman, who is bereft of his reason. Bowman is aged 18 years and is a cattle and sheep herder by occupation. He lived near Cheney where some of his relatives reside. Bowman was very violent and had to be bound with ropes. The officer and insane patient will leave this morning for Stellacoom.

A SICK GRAND JUROR.—For several days past Mr. Isaiah Buckman, one of the grand jurors of the state circuit court, has been quite indisposed. Yesterday District Attorney Caples made a statement of the case to the court and asked to have Mr. Buckman excused from further attendance on the grand jury, on account of sickness. Judge Stott granted the request, and appointed John W. Webber as a member of the grand jury to supply the vacancy.

SCHOOLHOUSE COMPLETED.—The schoolhouse in Holladay's Addition, East Portland, has been completed, and it is the intention of the directors to have the building done so as to open school on Monday next. The delay caused by the failure of the first contractor to complete the job until this time, has been a source of annoyance, but now the school may be expected to continue on to the end of the term without interruption.

THE PHILOMATHEAN LITERARY SOCIETY.—A meeting of this society will be held in the office of Catlin & Nichols, in Union block this evening, at which it is desirous to have every person who at any time since the organization has been connected with it either as an active or honorary member. The 3d of October will be the eighth anniversary. Business of interest and importance will be transacted.

THE FUNERAL.—This afternoon at 1 o'clock the funeral of the late James A. Smith will take place from the residence, northwest corner of Main and Ninth streets. The members of Multnomah No. 2 will turn out and escort the remains to the cemetery. All friends are cordially invited to attend the funeral.

BOARD OF DELEGATES.—At the last regular meeting of the board of delegates of the Portland Fire Department no business was transacted. This evening an adjourned meeting of the board will be held, at which every delegate of the board is expected to be present.

FAILED TO AGREE.—The jury in the state circuit court before whom the case of Woodward & Magoon vs. A. Y. Hamilton was tried, was not able to agree after being out for a long time. Yesterday the jury was called in and discharged by Judge Stott.

NEW BRICK.—Col. Hardenberg proposes to erect this season a neat 2-story brick building, [illegible] near the corner of Morrison and Fourth streets. The ground is being cleared, and the excavating for the basement will commence in a few days.

BRIEF NOTES.

[illegible] means, experience and consequently large practice [illegible] through preparation for practice [illegible] medical institutions in the United States [illegible] should have used her full measure of accomplishments in medical science. [illegible] yesterday morning and [illegible] The inquest [illegible] was sitting, the [illegible] Charles Bellanger and my cook, a Chinaman [illegible] I stood at the bar and saw Mr. Smith come out of the parlor and at the same time he made a motion of his hand as if to strike him. [illegible] strike the man that shot him. I did not know his name. The man then took his pistol out of his pocket and shot him. He then put the pistol back into his pocket. I then saw the lady of the house take the pistol out of his pocket and take it into the back parlor. The man ran down to his boat, in which was a Chinaman and tried to get away. Then Charles Bellanger got into his boat and went after him. The man in the other boat made a motion with his oar as if to strike him. Bellanger then made an offer to strike him. At that time the proprietor of the saloon called to the man and told him he had better come back and wait until a policeman came. He said "all right" and came back on board of the scow. I did not know the name of the man that shot Smith. Never saw him before up to this day. Did not see or hear any quarreling between Smith and the man that shot him.

[illegible]

A Chinaman, being duly sworn, testified that he was on the scow at Ross island. Went up there at about 7 o'clock with [illegible] I was sitting in the saloon. Two men were there. He heard no talk. He saw one man take out a pistol and shoot the other man. He then tried to get away, and Charles Bellanger brought him back.

[illegible]

A Chinaman, sworn: I work for Mrs. Leahy. I went up to Ross island with Howard in a boat. Went into the saloon and got some beer and bread and butter. Went back into the boat and tried to catch some fish. Saw a man come out and enquire for Howard. He went back. Heard a pistol shot. Howard came out and got into the boat. Stood up in it. I sat down. A man came out after Howard. They drew oars on one another, and then Howard went back with the man into the saloon. Saw a man lying on the floor in the saloon. Have seen Howard on the street before. I did not know his name was Howard.

[illegible] CAYWOOD.

Was notified that a murder had been committed at Ross island. Went there with Deputy Sheriff Caywood and arrested the man who gave his name as Frank Howard. He was pointed out to me as the man who did the shooting. Here a pistol was given to Officer Collins, in my presence, by the wife of the man who keeps the saloon on the scow at the Jefferson street ferry. Was given to me about [illegible] P. M. She said that she snatched it from the fellow who did the shooting. I handed the pistol to Caywood, and he gave it back to me at the city jail. I have had it in my possession ever since. It is No. [illegible] self-cocker. The barrel has been cut off and the sight knocked off.

R. COLLINS.

I am a police officer. I recognize the pistol as the one given to me at the foot of Jefferson street by a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Shaw.

JOHN DARBY.

I was at Ross island yesterday afternoon as near as I can recollect at about 4 o'clock. Heard a shot just as I got there and while tying up my boat heard a body fall. I went up to the house and saw Smith lying on the floor and the man that was afterward arrested was standing at the bar. Everybody said, "that is the man that murdered him." The prisoner then attempted to escape. I followed him around by the back of the house. At that time he had got into a boat and attempted to escape. A Frenchman then ran down and as he approached the prisoner he raised an oar and said, "I will kill you." The other man raised an oar and I told him to knock him down or capture him in some way. The man dropped his oar and came back. He did not say anything that I could understand as they were all talking French. The prisoner appeared to be under the influence of liquor but I could not say positively. He did not stagger. I saw present at the time four men and two women.

ALPHONSO CHALK.

I am the proprietor of the saloon at Ross island. I recognize the body as that of James A. Smith. He has been staying with me on and off since the 8th of July last. He was in my saloon yesterday afternoon. The man who gave his name to the officers as Howard, was at my place yesterday afternoon. I did not know his name then. Howard came to my scow yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. Smith and Howard had two or three drinks together. Chinamen came up to drink and Howard said he would not drink with Chinamen. Charlie called Howard a bad name and all hands appeared to be in a row, calling each other bad names. Smith called for a rifle to shoot Howard. I shouted to them to be quiet. They got quiet for a while and then the row broke out again. Smith raised his left hand and put his right hand on his right hip. I heard a shot and saw Smith fall. Saw Howard have a pistol in his pocket. He had no chance to [illegible] not see Smith have a pistol. Smith was in the habit of approaching people in a threatening way when under the influence of liquor. Would not know the pistol if I saw it. The pistol I saw had a white handle. Mr. Mulary showed a pistol with a black handle which the witness [illegible] Howard said, after the shot, "He is not killed. I did not intend to kill him." After I sent for the police he again said he did not intend to kill him. Howard told me he was Scotch-Canadian.

MRS. ELLEN CHALK, SWORN.

I live on Ross island on the scow. My husband is proprietor of the scow. I was on the scow yesterday afternoon. I know of a man coming on to the scow, don't know his name, it was in the afternoon; it was the man who fired the shot at Smith; the first I saw was a lady and Howard was quarreling; Smith and a Chinaman joined in the quarrel, calling Howard very bad names; Smith struck the man when I [illegible] Smith [illegible] Smith wanted his gun which I would not give him; he tried to get his gun out of my room, and said he would shoot the man; after a time Smith made for the man with one hand in his pocket, the man shoved him off and Smith made for him again, when I heard the shot; then I said "My God! you have killed him." He said, "No, I have not." I then took the pistol from him and after putting it away I came back and [illegible] with a [illegible] knife the [illegible] Chinaman had the knife when Smith was shot. I can not recognize the pistol. I gave it to a policeman. I don't know whether Smith had a pistol or not [illegible] was engaged in the quarrel, but sat down when my husband asked him to. Howard said all the time he wanted no trouble; he wanted peace and asked [illegible] to drink and be friends. [illegible] but said he wanted to be [illegible] [illegible]

THE VERDICT.

MESSAGE FROM THE MAYOR.

The following communication was read:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, PORTLAND, Sept. 13, 1881.

To the Honorable Common Council—GENTLEMEN: I most respectfully call your attention to the great necessity of having a police station in the northern portion of the city. With the limited number of policemen that we now have doing duty, a station should be at once established in the northern portion of the city, so that when arrests are made in the night, prisoners may be detained there until morning before taking the time of the officers in taking them to the police building. The cost of such a building would be but a small item. Respectfully submitted. D. P. THOMPSON, Mayor.

Referred to committee on health and police.

PETITIONS.

THE KITTITASS VALLEY.

farming land—both government and railroad—surrounding the valley from the surrounding hills and [illegible] water courses. The total grain crop of this season, from estimates made from threshers' count and [illegible] bushels of wheat [illegible] of which will be surplus. Owing to the absence of a market, much of this season's grain was cut for hay, of which there [illegible]. This quantity, considering the small number of animals now in this section, is a much larger amount than can be consumed the coming winter. Indeed I doubt if there will be any considerable demand for it, as there will certainly be over 50,000 tons of straw and chaff, much of which, in an emergency, will be used as feed. Although the farming element of the valley has heretofore been considered secondary in importance to that of stock, this condition of affairs, owing to last winter's losses, has undergone a decided change. Indeed, the relative standing of the respective interests has been reversed. Stock men, finding their occupation gone—to their credit be it said—settled down to farming in real earnest. Hence there has been far greater improvement, and owing to increased local demand, all are doing well.

THE SOIL

of the valley is largely composed of the wash from the hills and mountains surrounding—decomposed basalt and other matter—so productive of the most luxuriant growth and nutritious quality of the cereals, vegetables, etc., as well as the most luscious, highly flavored fruits. The innumerable streams which flow directly from the Cascade mountains and contiguous hills, which form the surrounding water shed,—meandering across the valley at distances of 1½ to 2 miles apart, present unequaled facilities for a most complete and economical system of irrigation; and this universal solvent so highly charged with organic matter, none can afford to be deprived of. The coating of dark yellow colored sediment which remains distributed over the surface of the lands of the valley by the slight annual overflow of the streams and various irrigating ditches is constantly renewing or adding to the vitality of the soil. Hence, that it pays to irrigate no intelligent farmer here attempts to dispute, well-knowing its manifold advantages. He is freed from any anxiety as regards drouth, and enabled to maintain throughout the season a uniform growth of his crop—green pastures and more rapid and continuous growth of trees until late in summer, and moreover, in this section, with these advantages taken in connection with the purity of the atmosphere and water, success in dairy farming is assured, enabling those who follow it to make during the later months of summer and early in the fall much larger quantities of butter proportionately, and of a quality which unquestionably excels that made in most other sections. The amount of butter annually exported, much of which goes to The Dalles, is over 70,000 pounds. Probably the most extensive stock and dairy farmers in the valley are Geo. E. Smith & Bro. They have a splendid 3000-acre farm located in about the center of the valley. The past season they have cut over 300 tons of hay and are now engaged in harvesting 200 acres of grain, which promises to be over average yield. Besides milking 110 cows and making from 50 to 60 pounds of butter per day, they drive an average of 100 head of beef cattle per month to Seattle. They are also fattening and will bacon 150 head of hogs, averaging 250 pounds each, and this winter will stall feed 300 head of steers. Notwithstanding this large amount of business, the indefatigable members of this firm, in connection with Walter A. Bull—who is also the owner of a splendid 1000 acre "patch" in the valley,—have just completed,—and in a most satisfactory manner to all concerned, a tie and timber contract of five million feet for the N. P. R. R. Co. Among the other large and finely cultivated farms in this valley are Whitson's 1000 acre tract, and those of Olmstead, Dammon, Stevens, C. P. Cook, Canaday Brothers, Thorpe, Schnebleys, Vaughns, Jonas, and indeed hundreds of others, which will compare favorably with the best farms in the territory.

THE MANUFACTURING

Interests of the valley are also rapidly growing to considerable proportions. There are no less than four flouring mills with a present capacity of over 200 barrels per day of 24 hours. Those of Messrs. Dammon and Canaday Bros. are at present the largest. The others, however, are adding new machinery, etc. Canaday Bros., located on Wilson creek, four miles from Ellensburg, have just finished some heavy tunnel work, basement and stone foundation for a mill 40 by 70 feet, to be four stories in hight and built of brick. It will be finished this fall and will have a capacity of 100 barrels per day, with all needed space in the building for the addition of the latest improvements in machinery and an increase of its capacity to 250 barrels per day,—making it one of the finest mills in the territory.

There are besides the complete furniture factory of Pressy & Sprague, at Ellensburg, and four saw and two shingle mills in the timbered sections immediately adjoining the valley. The most extensive is the large steam saw mill of Thos. Johnson, which cuts 40,000 feet in 11 hours, at present located some 20 miles from the valley on the upper Yakima, and engaged in cutting ties on a contract of 174,000, of which number 57,000 have been delivered. The balance will be finished in October. Previous to this latter date, however, the mill will be moved down the river, 15 miles nearer the valley.

TIMBER FACILITIES.

The valley is flanked around its west end by large tracts, covered with a heavy, even growth of pine, fir and tamarack, which at present is accessible by driving down the larger streams, and in the future will be favored by the splendid flumin[g] facilities presented by the innumerable tributaries of the Yakima, which in all directions drain the finest portions of these timbered sections, and will undoubtedly prove a source of great future wealth to the valley.

CLIMATE, SCENERY, ETC.

The elevation above the sea, 1622 feet, taken in connection with its situation, nestling at the eastern base of the Cascades, and some over 60 miles in an air line from the sound—near the climatic point of difference between the two great sections of the cascades—gives this section the full benefit of the invigorating properties of the light, dry mountain air, toned down by an intermingling of the milder breezes from the coast. These combine to produce a most delightful climate, which for health giving qualities I doubt if it be surpassed by any other section of the territory.

The scenery in the valley as viewed from the different elevations or angles is pleasingly varied and highly picturesque. The Yakima, its banks lined with a rich growth of balm, willows, alder, etc., entering from the west, flows near the southern side of the valley in an easterly direction some 15 miles. Then it abruptly turns and disappears through a narrow gorge leading south. Hence the most complete and pleasing view is to be had from the elevations on the south side of the valley. From whence, traveling in a northerly direction across the river and the broad belt of bottoms, the lands become gradually and almost imperceptibly higher until reaching the first or great bench, which constitutes the bulk of the lands in the valley, and is covered with a tall growth of sage brush. Thence to the northeast there is a gradual rise to the foot hills; but to the west or north you approach the hills over terrace like formations, through which the various mountain streams have cut small canyons, on their journey southward toward the Yakima. The course of these numerous streams which traverse the valley from north to south at short intervals, their banks fringed with a growth of smaller trees and shrubbery which at this season of the year afford a most delightful contrast to the golden yellow of the grain fields. One can scarce imagine a more pleasing blending of brilliant hues under the bright noonday sun.

The Cascade range rises grandly to view in the west and north, the latter section composed of a serrated line of partially snow-clad peaks, which from this peculiar grouping present a most remarkable and striking appearance, especially at twilight, when the weird outlines of their bold and broken crests rise sharply against the sky. The deep black shadows are seen, like great dark caverns amid their steep, angular and craggy sides. One after seeing such a sight can readily understand why a range in north Idaho presenting the same characteristic features should have been christened by the Indians with the thrilling and suggestive title "The Seven Devils of the Snake."

It seems to have been rather unfortunate that it didn't occur to the democrats of San Francisco, while they were making up a ticket, that it was hardly prudent to forget the "American vote."

BLACK VS. BLACK.

How the wily old Secretary Darkened Counsels.

Washington Republican.

Unfortunately for Jere Black, he was the legal adviser of Buchanan, and gave his advice in writing on the right of secession. On Nov. 20, 1860, he submitted a written opinion upon the subject of the powers of the general government to "coerce sovereign states." After saying that military force can suppress any such combinations as are formed directly opposing the laws and obstructing the execution thereof, and can do no more than might be done by a civil posse, he asks: "But what if the feeling in any state against the United States should become so universal that the federal officers themselves (including judges, district-attorneys, and marshals) would be reached by the same influences and resign their places? We are, therefore, to consider what can be done in case we have no courts to issue judicial process, and no ministerial officers to execute it. In that event troops would certainly be out of place, and their use illegal. If they are sent to aid the courts and marshals, then must the courts and marshals be aided. Without the exercise of those functions, which belong exclusively to the civil service, the laws can not be executed in any event, no matter what may be the physical strength which the government has at its command. Under such circumstances, to send a military force into any state with orders to act against the people, would be simply making war upon them.

Again he said, "If one of the states should declare her independence, your action can not depend upon the rightfulness of the cause upon which such declaration is based."

Upon this he argues that no power is given by express words or by implication of the constitution "to make war on one or more states." "The power to declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and to make rules concerning captures on land and water," "means nothing more than the power to commence and carry on hostilities against the foreign enemies of the nation." In the same manner he reasons that the constitution, "only gives power to suppress insurrection against not by a state." He exclaims:

"If congress shall break up the present union by unconstitutionally putting strife, and enmity, and armed hostility between different sections of the country, will not all the states be absolved from their obligations? Is any portion of the people bound to contribute their money or their blood to carry on a contest like that?"

He says in regard to the letter of Gen. Scott:

"What impetus this action and the published utterances gave to secession can be best determined from that document."

What impetus Black's argument, that the nation was powerless to put down the rebellion, and which was published broadcast north and south gave to the foes of the union cannot be in doubt.

If the republic could have been preserved without coercing the south; if the flag could have been triumphant without invading the sacred soil; if freedom could have been assured without enfranchising a slave; if the treasury could have been filled without levying a tax; if armies could have been recruited without men, and victories gained without battle, then, perhaps, would the policy of such men as Black have made us as great, as free, as powerful, as victorious as we became by rejecting their advice.
